

MASON LODGE OF MOURNING

Edmonton Brethren Honor Memory of Late King Edward.

CEREMONY WAS VERY IMPRESSIVE

Lodge Room was Heavily Draped in Black and a Large Number was Present.

With solemn ritual and impressive ceremonies, the members of the three Masonic lodges in Edmonton held a memorial service in the Masonic Hall on Second street yesterday afternoon. All the lodges were well represented, and the services were of a peculiarly impressive character, as they were in memory of the late King, who was himself a past grand master of the Masonic order. The death of a King who is also a high official in Masonic circles is an event that is very rare indeed, and as was pointed out by a member of one of the local lodges, it is unlikely that any who participated in the service yesterday will ever again take part in a similar one.

The ritual was that of the "Lodge of Sorrow." It is the only work of the Masonic order that is of a public nature. The service will be repeated on Friday evening in the Empire Theatre. Yesterday afternoon the lodge room was decorated in black, the several stations being covered with the same emblem of mourning. In the centre of the room was placed a catafalque, which consisted of a rectangular platform about six feet long by four feet wide, on which were two smaller platforms, so that three steps were represented. On the third and highest platform was a rain dais on which was placed an urn, the whole being heavily draped in black.

At each corner of the platform was a candlestick, bearing a lighted taper, and now it, facing the East, was seated a brother with an extinguisher. On the "masters' pedestal" was placed a lighted taper and a skull, and on the catafalque was a pair of white gloves and a lambrequin apron, with the insignia of a grand master.

Lodge Room Dimly Lighted

When the service started, the lights on the catafalque were burning and the lights in the lodge room were all dim. After all the members were in their places, the worshipful master opened the ceremony by asking the senior warden for what purpose the meeting was called.

"Brother Senior Warden," he demanded, "For what purpose are we assembled?"

Senior Warden: "To honor the memory of our departed sovereign, Worshipful Master Brother King Edward VII., whose death hath taken from us; to contemplate our own approaching dissolution; and, by the remembrance of immortality, to raise our souls above the considerations of this transitory existence."

W. M.: "Brother Junior Warden, what sentiments should inspire the souls of Masons on occasions like the present?"

Junior Warden: "Calm sorrow for the absence of our W. M., brother, who has gone before us; earnest solicitude for our own eternal welfare, and a firm faith and reliance upon the wisdom and goodness of the Great Architect of the Universe."

W. M.: "Brethren, commanding these sentiments to your earnest consideration, and invoking your assistance in the solemn ceremonies about to take place, I declare this lodge of mourning opened."

The worshipful master then offered the following prayer:

"Grand Architect of the Universe, in whose holy sight centuries are but as days; to whose omniscience the past and the future are but as one eternal present; look down upon thy children who still wander among the delusions of time—who still tremble with dread of dissolution and shudder at the mysteries of the future; look down upon us beseech Thee, from Thy glories and eternal day into the dark night of our error and presumption, and suffer a ray of Thy divine light to penetrate into our hearts, that in them may awaken and bloom the cere-

The judges are already in the city and Mr. W. L. Walsh, K.C., left Calgary for Edmonton this morning. It is expected that the Commission will continue taking evidence here until the end of next week. Among the witnesses who are to be examined are Premier Rutherford, Hon. C. W. Cross, Mr. J. McLeod, A. C. Fraser of the Merchants Bank, F. McMillan of the Royal Bank, Cecil Goddard, secretary of the A. & G. W., and Dr. Melnis, who holds a contract for ties.

Adge and Russell Burnett, two employees of the company were so badly burned that they had to be removed to the hospital and their conditions are precarious. Socialists Form Colony

Seattle, May 16.—Twenty-four Americans, the majority of whom hail from this city, plan to leave Seattle next month for Southern Peru.

The leader of the party, Captain H. J. Thompson, says that his co-operative colony has already received permission from the Peruvian Government to try all civil and criminal cases except murder arising within the confines of the colony, or involving in property of the colonists. Not only will the co-operative colonies have their own court and judicial system, but the legislative and executive branches of the little government will be organized according to an ideal system which will eliminate all the friction and inertia which are concomitant with modern systems of law and which result in corruption, anarchy and poverty, to quote the leader.

PAPER WANTS A NEW PARTY

L'Evenement, of Quebec, Says Conservatives Have Failed.

DOES NOT WANT A FRENCH PARTY

But Says That the New Movement will Have to Begin in the Province of Quebec.

Montreal, May 16.—L'Evenement, the one French Conservative daily in the Province, commences a series of articles demanding the formation of a new party, composed of all races and creeds, to rid the country of the party in power.

The article intimates that the present opposition has failed to live up to the compact of 1854, and that such men as Hon. George E. Foster have spoiled the patriotic efforts of Sir Charles Tupper and Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

"In fact," adds L'Evenement, "the camp is running over, and the one thing left us to do is to organize separately and march towards that future which our traditions impose. By this we do not wish to form a French-Canadian party, as we have no intention of isolating ourselves in the Confederation. We suggest the reunion under the same flag of men of all races, nationalities, and religions who desire that the present regime shall end because it is disorganizing and ruining us. Our allies of the past in the other provinces are powerless to win because they are the accomplices of some of the government's greatest errors, the last of which overruns the cup."

L'Evenement suggests that an organization on these lines shall be brought about in each county. When Quebec will have forty or fifty members elected under such auspices, the page of history will open, such as that for which Bourassa and Lavergne worked in vain for the Liberal party, and which Mr. Monk and other Conservative members from this province are now striving to obtain at Ottawa.

London, May 16.—A special court has declared that the election to the House of Commons in January last of Frederick Edward Guest from the east division of Dorset is invalid, on the ground that the candidate's expenses were excessive and that a full return concerning them had not been made by his agents. Justice Lawrence exonerated Mr. Guest of any foreknowledge that the motor cars sent into the constituency on the day of the election by his father-in-law, Henry Phipps, a steel magnate of Pittsburgh, were hired on his behalf. The hiring of the vehicles for use in getting in votes is not permissible under the British election law.

WILL COST TO SEE FUNERAL

Seats in Stands Along Route will cost
$5 to $75.

London, May 16.—Realizing that the King's funeral will bring together the greatest array of royalty ever seen, enterprising speculators intend to see that the charges are commensurate. The cheapest seat on the reviewing stands will sell for $5, and from this they will run to $50, and possibly $75. House owners along the route have already sold window space, sufficient for eight spectators, for $50, and one balcony brought $600. Even these prices are likely to be raised as the day for the funeral, May 20th, approaches.

General Principles of the Bill Have Been

Washington, D.C., May 16.—The conference at the White House which began shortly after eleven o'clock on Saturday night and which was not concluded until after one o'clock Sunday morning, the President undoubtedly believes, has brought the regular organization senators and such a number of insurgents and near-insurgents together that there is no longer reason to fear the existence of a working and voting Republican minority.

The conference resulted in mutual concessions, a clearing of the air, a realization on the part of every participant that something tangible must come out of the present session of congress if the country is not to be thrown into such confusion that the Republicans' success in the next Presidential campaign will be endangered.

While the President and his intimate advisers did not yield in any important essentials, certain modifications have been agreed to with regard to the railroad bill that the majority of Republicans in the senate will now support it.

From now on they will fight unitedly for its enactment. Section nine of the bill provides that whenever any schedule is filled stating any new rate, fare of charge, joint rate, classification, practice, etc., the commission shall, upon complaint, enter upon a hearing. Pending such hearing, the commission is given authority to suspend the operation of such schedule, rates, etc., but not for a longer period than sixty days.

The House fixed this suspension for a period not longer than 120 days. At this conference the longer period was agreed to and the Senate bill will be made to conform to the house requirements. The senate also provided that upon the hearing of such complaints, etc., the shipper may be represented and this was also agreed upon.

Maurice Lustig, of New York, was Found Guilty of Murdering his Wife.

New York, May 16.—Maurice Lustig, former private detective, was found guilty of murder today. The state contended that he poisoned his wife Rhoda with strychnine last October. She carried $3,000 insurance and Lustig was in love with another woman. Mrs. Lustig died in convulsions and it was then thought that she had lupus meningitis. An anonymous postal card first called the coroner's attention to the case. The life insurance company pushed it and Mrs. Lustig's body was finally disinterred at Mileroy, Pa. Sentence will be pronounced on Friday.

FOREST FIRES ARE IN LAKE DISTRICT

From Duluth to Canadian Border in Flames—Farmers Flee to Cities for Safety.

Duluth, Minn., May 15.—Forest fires are raging from Duluth north and east to the Canadian border and west to the Bemidji and Lake districts 100 miles from here. The destruction of standing pine will be very great and scores of farmers have been compelled to flee to the cities with their families for safety.

Many settlers' homes have been burned. The fires around the city of Bemidji were very dangerous to the outskirts and some of the houses on the outskirts caught fire. A call for help was sent to Duluth, but while preparations are being made to rush fire apparatus from here a heavy downpour of rain quelled the flames and saved the imperilled town. Immediate danger in that district is over. The companies of the National Guard were in readiness to take charge of the situation at Bemidji but Governor Eberhardt has countermanded the order.

Clouds of smoke from the fires along the north shore of the Lake Superior are rolling out over the water and making navigation dangerous. There has been no rain in that district and the conditions are dangerous as the woods are black with smoke.

Mr. J. A. Carlett, C.E., who is in charge of the Provincial government survey work of this district, has left for the season and his trail for the prairie tomorrow. He will proceed with the laying out of roads and bridges, beginning at Seven Persons and passing on to Little Plume, Josephsburg, Cypress Hills, Strathmar, Willow Creek, Graburn, Walsh, Irvine, and back into Medicine Hat. The outfit will then be sent to Agnes, the present terminus of the Langdon north branch of the C. P. R. where work of the same nature will be carried on—Medicine Hat News.

Herbert Scott was in town today from his farm eleven miles east. Mr. Scott reports that he has 530 acres seeded to wheat and will finish seeding 700 acres of oats in a few days, making 600 acres in all. He has plowed all of the land and harrowed it five times. When farmers in general farm in this manner, we will see the country go ahead with leaps and bounds and crops will be produced that will open the eyes of the world. The average yield of spring wheat for the province last year was 20 bushels per acre. Under proper farming the yield can be much increased—Stettler Independent.

Robt. Shaw, M.P.P., of Stettler, W. J. Williams, manager of the Traders Bank at Stettler, J. Cummings, chief engineer of the Canadian Northern Railway Co., and W. Grisey, secretary-treasurer of the same company, arrived in town on Thursday morning of last week, having come from Stettler in Mr. Shaw's automobile, to have a look over the country generally. They remained in Gleichen several hours, and were accompanied to Strathmore by the Call-man, from where they went on to Langdon on the evening, reaching Calgary early on the following morning. From there they left in a north-easterly direction for Stettler. The entire trip would cover a distance of over 400 miles and while some of the roads they traversed were perhaps never before covered by an auto they only had one or two delays and all reporter themselves napped pleased with the trip—Gleichen Call.

ACCIDENT AT CARMANGAY

Man Badly Burned by Gasoline but his Clothes Unhatched.

Lethbridge, May 16.—A very painful accident occurred at Carmangay on Friday in the elevator here. Mr. Nelson, a gasoline engine expert from Winnipeg, was engaged in making repairs upon the engine. When his work had been almost completed he struck a match to view the upper part of the machine and instantly a violent explosion occurred. Mr. Nelson was carried across the street to the hotel and medical aid was at once summoned. Everything possible was done for the injured man. His clothes were untouched, while he was badly burned about the body, especially on his back and chest. It is a mystery how his clothes went unscathed, while he received injuries which only prove fatal. The explosion is attributed to a leakage of gasoline from the engine.

Capt. Carpenter has returned from his visit to the old country and will resume his duties in the regiment.

Capt. Weeks has been granted extended leave of absence and is now in the south of France.

On Thursday the officers mess had the pleasure of entertaining the 10th Light Horse.

Although no orders have been issued as yet from headquarters, it is expected that the regiment will parade in full strength on the occasion of the funeral of the late King.

Recruits have not been joining as was expected in view of the inducements offered this season; but it must be a matter of pride to every officer in the regiment to note the excellent standard of drill maintained by those men who have been attending. Their bearing is smart and soldierly, and evidences the fact that it must have been these men who gained such approval for the regiment last year, from the General Officer inspecting.

"A" Squadron A. M. R. No orders have been issued yet, but it is expected that the regiment will parade in connection with the funeral of the late King.

"A" Squadron will drill as usual on Wednesday evening next.

Socialists Sell Bonds

Milwaukee, Wis., May 14.—The Socialist administration has announced that the danger of a failure to float bonds issued by the Socialistic municipality has been averted. Labor unions, it is announced, come to the aid of the Socialists in case banking interests are unwilling to risk money in bonds issued by the new administration.

Big eastern bankers will not, it is feared here, and in selling municipal bonds if the Socialists cause a depreciation in the bonds of local public service corporations.

The announcement was made at the mayor's office, however, that the International Bakers' Union had decided to purchase $100,000 worth of bonds and will sell that amount of United States bonds now held in its treasury to make the new investment possible.

A Camrose Railway Dispute

Winnipeg Free Press: A deputation from Camrose, Alta., arrived in the city on Thursday to lay before the railway commission claims for special consideration. The deputation consists of Mayor Twomey, C. G. Cornille, and J. R. Davidson, secretary of the board of trade. The trip originated in a dispute between the government, the G. T. P. and the C. N. R. The two railways, which were connected by bonds on branch lines which were to go through Camrose south. The C. N. R. branch ran south from Vegreville and the first G. T. P. survey paralleled it from Ryley. The government refused to guarantee the bonds on the G. T. P. if it ran too close to the competitor, so construction was rushed through from Tuleid, the rails being laid before the plans were passed upon at Ottawa, the haste being necessary because of the time limit imposed.

Where the B. N. T. crosses the town a diamond is necessary at the present C. P. R. crossing. The G. T. P. proposes to place the diamond just outside the C. P. R. yards and the latter company objects. The deputation explained that were the G. T. P. line placed farther out it would have to be beyond a creek which crosses one corner of the townsite and would be a mile from the heart of the town. The commission decided to allow the closer location.

Percherons for Alberta

Winnipeg, April 16.—There arrived in Winnipeg last week, one of the most important and valuable importations of Percheron horses ever made to the Canadian West. It comprised sixteen mares, all of splendid strains of breeding, that has been specially selected for the Bar U ranch by their own agents in France. The mares are all young, twelve being three years old and two only two years old. The heaviest mare, a beautiful white Percheron with typical lines of a brood mare, weighed 1,700 pounds and the lightest of the sixteen tipped the scale at 1,400 pounds. The shipment came by way of Havre to Southampton and Montreal, and were under the care of Mr. Allen Williams. The weather was good and the horses were only 21 days from Havre to Winnipeg and arrived in first class condition. They went forward to High River last evening. Mr. George Lane, of Lane and Fards, owners of the Bar U ranch has unlimited faith in the future of the Percheron not only in Alberta but in the whole Canadian west, and he certainly shows his faith by the enormous sum of money which his firm have already invested in pure bred Percheron stallions and mares. The present is the largest single importation of Percheron females which they have made. When this shipment reaches its destination there will be over 130 pure bred Percheron mares on the Bar U ranch.

Diet of Olives and Rye Bread to Help
Condition Big Fellow—So Mr.
Duncan Suggests.

(By R. L. Goldberg)

"Jimcock, Jeffcock—how does that sound to you, Alberta? If you feel that way about it, don't blame it on us. We got it from the gent who floats around town wrapped in a Turkish towel and a piece of rye bread.

Sure you've seen him! His name is Raymond Duncan. He isn't his sister, Isadora, are strong for the way the ancient Greeks did things and have tossed all the hard-boiled laundry into the waste basket, wrapped themselves in a couple of table cloths and removed the shoes from their shoulders. They are now closer to nature than an unpecked potato and seem to be getting away with the bare article of apparel with wonderful success.

His Scenery

Raymond looks like a bunch of scenery from an unsuccessful show that has found its way to the theatrical storehouse. But otherwise he claims to be in perfect health and says he can lick anybody on the block.

One of Mr. Duncan's principles is his modest belief in the fact that he knows more about everything than anybody else. He can paint, talk, write music and literature, play poker, cut and do anything better than all the champions in every line—that is, he willingly makes the admission. All of which lead him to developing a mild interest in the Jeffries-Johnson battle.

No Laundry Bills

"I honestly believe," said Mr. Duncan, as we discovered him eating his daily meal, which consisted of half an Italian olive and a slice of Arabian rye bread, "that Jeffries would have a better chance to win if he adopted the ancient Greek mode of living which I and my family follow. He should discard all unnecessary clothes because they overheat the mind and body, thus preventing well-organized thought and free circulation of the blood.

"Look at me. I have no laundry bills to worry about, no shoes to have mended, no stocks to deal and I never get a hair cut. My chief diet consists of olives and black bread. I don't know why I have confined myself to these foods. Maybe radishes are dangerous and I don't know. The climate of Greece is not suited for the cultivation of gumpdrops.

"Money is my least worry. I make everything I wear and raise everything I eat. My only expense is to my family. And then, very often, the conductor thinks I'm a bundle of something and doesn't ask me for my fare. If Jeff's mind were as free from worry as my own, he would be able to use every bit of his energy against Johnson.

"The chief idea is to make yourself believe that you can get away with anything if you only go about it in the right way. And the Greek mode of living is the only thing that can put you in this frame of mind. I think I could beat Johnson myself with the help of an ax and a few sticks of dynamite."

We offered to get Mr. Duncan a match with any good fighter around New York. "I must refuse," replied Duncan. "I leave all the scrapping in the family to my little four-year-old son, Ostrichguy. He can lick any answer in any language in which you address him. He is an expert stenographer, painter and mechanic. The only thing he doesn't do is slave—which is no fault of his own."

And the Boy

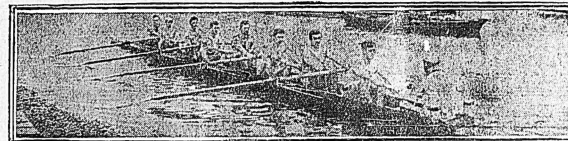

"Yes, when he grows up I believe he will clean up everything in sight, both inside and outside of the prize ring."

Mr. Duncan wrapped his towel around his neck, bit off the end of an olive, and said: "Hiss noise the same anthracite cocoa cola polo Friday," which means, "I'll be back next summer at 2 o'clock" in Greek.

No professional player wears a moustache now. It's an unwritten rule of the profession to play the game without either beard or moustache. Outfielder Tates of the Philadelphia, was the last National League player to discard his moustache. He had it removed two years ago.

lality of life, calms upon Thy promise, and assurance of a place at Thy right hand, Amen."

"So mote it be," responded the members.

Lessons of the Skull

The worshipful master then took the skull in his hand and said:

"Brethren, in the midst of life we are in death, and the wisest cannot know what a day may bring forth. We live but to see those we love passing away into the silent land.

Rebald this emblem of mortality, once beneath this smouldering canopy, shine the bright and busy eye within this hollow cavern once playing the ready, swift and tuneful tongue, now, sightless and mute, it is eloquent only in the lessons it teaches us.

"Think of those brethren, who, but a few days since, were among us in all the pride and power of life; bring to your minds the remembrance of their wisdom, their strength, and their beauty; and then reflect that 'so this complexion have they come a thistle' think of yourself, this will you be when the lamp of your brief existence has burned out. Think of how soon death is for you, will be a reality. Man's life is like a flower, which blooms to-day and tomorrow is faded, cast aside and trodden under foot. The most of us, my brethren, are fast approaching, or have already passed the meridian of life; our sun is setting in the west; and oh! how much more swift is the passage of our declining years than when we started upon the journey, and believed—as the young are too apt to believe—that the rosy hues of the rising sun of existence were always to be continued. When we look back upon the happy days of our childhood, when the dawning intellect first began to exercise its powers of thought, it seems as but yesterday, and that, by a simple effort of the will, we could put aside our manhood, and seek again the loving caresses of a mother, or be happy in the possession of a lover, and could we now realize the idea that our last hour had come, our whole earthly life would seem but as the space of time from yesterday until today. Centuries upon centuries have rolled away behind us; before us stretches out an eternity of years to come; and on the narrow boundary between the past and the present flickers the puny taper we term our life. When we came into the world, we knew naught of what had been before us; but, as we grew up to manhood, we learned of the past; we saw the flowers bloom as they had bloomed for centuries; we beheld the orbs of day and night pursuing their endless course among the stars, as they had pursued it from the birth of light; we learned what men had thought, and said, and done, from the beginning of the world to our day; but only through the eye of faith can we behold what is to come hereafter, and only through a firm reliance upon the divine promises can we realize the yearnings of an immortal soul. The cradle speaks to us of remembrance—the coffin, of hope, of a blessed trust; in a never-ending existence beyond portals of the tomb.

Let these reflections convince us how vain are all the wranglings and bitterness engendered by the collisions of the world; how little in dignity above the petty wranglings of ants over a morsel of food, or for the possession of a square inch of soil.

Pettiness of This World

What shall survive us? Not, let us hope, the petty strifes and bickerings, the jealousies and heart-burnings, the small triumphs and mean advantages we have gained, but rather the noble thoughts, the words of truth, the works of mercy and justice, that endure and light up the existence of every honest man, however humble, and live for good when his body, like this remnant of mortality, is smouldering in its parent dust.

Let the proud and the vain consider how soon the gaps are filled that are made in society but those who die around them and how soon time heals the wounds that death inflicts upon the loving heart; and from this let them learn humility, and that they are but drops in the great ocean of humanity.

And when God sends His Angel to us with the scroll of death, let us look upon it as an act of mercy, to prevent many sins and many calamities of a longer life; and lay down our heads softly and go to sleep without wringing like forward children. For this at least man gets by death, that his calamities are not immortal. To bear grief honorably and temperately, and to die willingly and nobly, are the duties of a good man and true Mason."

After the chaplain read many passages from the scriptures dealing with death and the transitoriness of all things earthly. When he finished, in the silence that fell over the members, four brethren extinguished the tapers, and the lights were all turned low.

Lilies as Symbols

The chaplain then offered a prayer, and at its conclusion the warden, deacons and stewards approached the east.

First were the two stewards with rods, then warden, then the worshipful master, supported by deacons with rods. They moved around the catafalque while slow and solemn music was played. As they advanced to the east, the junior warden stepped forward and placed a wreath of white lilies on the catafalque, saying:

"In memory of our departed brother I deposit these white flowers, emblematic of that pure life to which he has been called, and reminding us that as these children of an hour will droop and fade away, so too, shall we soon follow those who have gone before us, and incontinuing us to fill the brief span of our existence that we may leave to our survivors a sweet legacy of remembrance."

The senior warden then stepped out and placing another wreath of white flowers on the catafalque said: "As she sun sets in the west to close the day and herald the approach of night, so on one by one we lay down in the darkness of the tomb to wait in the calm repose for the time when the heavens shall pass away as a scroll, and man, standing in the presence of the Infinite, shall realize the true end of his pilgrimage here below. Let these flowers be to us the symbol of the remembrance of all the virtues of our brethren who have preceded us to the silent land, the token of that fraternal alliance we hope will finally unite in heaven."

Wreath of Evergreens.

Next the worshipful master placed a wreath of evergreens, after the slow march around the catafalque had been resumed and ceased, and pointed out how the evergreen was a symbol of life, and represented the resurrection from the dead.

The chaplain then offered a prayer, and as he pronounced the concluding words, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" the lights in the hall blazed up, and a triumphant hymn was sung.

Judge Taylor then pronounced a eulogy on the late King, and after this the service closed.

The late King Edward VII. occupied the position of most worshipful grand master from 1874 until the time when he ascended the throne. As soon as he became king his position was taken by the Duke of Connaught, who still occupies it today.

Everyone Should Adopt a Child.

Did it ever occur to you that a different place this world would be if everyone who could possibly afford it to do so would adopt a child? How many thousands of "moral lives" of restless women and little, starved, pinched babies would be saved if only people would just open their doors and take into their homes a little child?

Dr. Lindsay Wynkoop of Chicago brought home the thought clearly enough when she made the suggestion the other day that everybody with an income of $25 a week or over should adopt a child.

"Who adopts a child," said Dr. Wynkoop, "does more good than Rockefeller, Carnegie, or even Florence Nightingale."

"I have four children," and one stood beside her, sturdy, stanch, compact, healthy looking and well dressed, this little eight-year-old, fair haired, pink and white faced chap had come to the conference with his mother. "Three of them are my own and one of them I adopted. I am a busy woman; I have a large practice; I am a professor of biology and embryology in the College of Physicians and Surgeons. I have a big house to look after. And I have the children to bring up."

"Still, I questioned myself closely and I knew that I had the one and the money for another child, so I adopted one, little Mary Louise, a year ago. She was then three weeks old. I think that it was my duty toward the race for me to do so. I think it is the duty of every person, man or woman, who has a possibility of it to do just this."

"No other humanitarianism can exactly take the place of this. You can give all of the money in the world, you can give more money than has gone in the Rockefeller foundations, but it will not touch the same fertile spot in the human soul that a little spark of motherly kindness will sink into."

"If everybody who could afford it would take one child, infant mortality among the poor, which Dr. Billings says is now almost 50 per cent. of the whole, would be decreased one-half. And of those children who live, the mortality of the human soul would be decreased on a large percentage than that."

Getting "Country Broke"

(By Elizabeth L. J. Phister)

Without giving the matter much thought I had always supposed that the country, and the things pertaining thereto, would grow so natural to a horse, that a colt that was perfectly "city broke" would take to country life like a duck to water. But it isn't always safe to count on what seems to be a logical conclusion.

Last summer I shipped a twenty-old colt that had been raised and trained in Chicago, and to which automobiles, electric cars, road rollers, elevated trains, and all the sights and noises of a great city were matters of supreme indifference, to my farm in New England.

Well, if you will believe it, she had to be introduced to every sight and sound. In the city there is always an undertone of noise and confusion, so I suppose that a little more or less didn't matter; but in the stillness of the country everything has its distinct sound and had to be accounted for, from the chirping of the crickets in the grass and the twittering of the birds in the trees, to the whir of the windmills overhead—all were new and wonderful to her.

She was too well behaved to try to run from these strange things, but her utter amazement was funny to see; and as I was perfectly willing to let her pause to examine and understand all these strange sights and sounds, it must have taken us more than half an hour to traverse the quarter of a mile from our gateway to the main road. Over this road, once so beautifully smooth macadam, four thanks to the automobiles, now rushing but rough foundation across, rumbled a procession of cars laden with rattling machinery, while electric cars and automobiles were to be seen and heard. As soon as my colt heard these accustomed noises she seemed to feel perfectly at home, and trotted off down the street, nibbling a particle of her former doubt and hesitancy.

A Want Ad. in The Capital will sub-let that furnished room, and make you feel quite like a Landlord yourself.

The blaze was extinguished before serious damage had been done. The fire originated in one of the upper rooms of the house and the efforts of the firemen prevented it from spreading to other parts of the building.

The Temperance and Moral Reform League introduced another innovation at their meeting held in the Orpheum Theatre yesterday afternoon, an arrangement having been made with the Salvation Army Band to march from their citadel on Fraser avenue to the theatre, where they played selections during the meeting. Rev. Prof. A. D. Miller of Alberta College addressed a large and appreciative audience and in a very practical address laid his dues before his hearers.

A Brick, Indeed

It was a little supper among the number of kindred spirits, and when the cloth was removed from the table nearly every one present obliged with a song except the chairman.

"As a matter of fact," he said apologetically "my voice is somewhat like the sound that is caused by a brick being rubbed along the panels of a door."

This excuse was put down by the good man's associate modestly.

"Very well, gentlemen," replied the chairman, "if you think you can stand it, here goes."

Long before he had finished his song the audience fidgeted in their seats, and when he sat down there was a deep silence.

Then the host was broken by a brassy Scot, who sat at the end of the table with a big decanter in front of him.

"Men," he exclaimed, "your singing's no up to much, but yet veritably just awfu'! Ye were richt about that brick!"

SOME RUMORS DENIED

Hon. P. E. Lessard Says There is Nothing in Story.

Vegreville Observer: Hon. P. E. Lessard was in Vegreville on Saturday in connection with his business interests here. Always affable and companionable, Mr. Lessard is invariably called "Uncle Sam."

In the course of conversation with the Observer Mr. Lessard expressed the opinion that the Rutherford government would easily be sustained when the Legislature meets on the 26th inst. He thought the insurgent members had overreached themselves, and since the investigation had so far proved nothing against any member of the government or legislature, a strong reaction had set in in favor of the government.

Asked if there was any truth in the report that he was to become minister of public works, Mr. Lessard asserted emphatically that the matter of an appointment to that position had never been discussed. The rumor was based "upon his frequent visits to the public works department, but he said that while he was certainly often at that department, his visits had nothing to do with his administration. So as he knew there was no appointment of ministers to fill vacant portfolios until after the legislature meets.

Great Diversity of Crops.

"The people of Western Canada have talked wheat so much that there may be other things even more profitable than wheat which can be produced to very great advantage. The Edmonton district is particularly favored in being able to raise to advantage a great diversity of crops, all of which are highly profitable to the husbandman. Last year Mr. Fred J. McLeay of west 1-2-4-5-24, about 12 miles north of Edmonton, had a very good stand on one hundred acres of Timothy. As an experiment Mr. McLeay sowed about one-quarter of this, and for the seed so obtained he received an even six hundred dollars. He also sold the hay after threshing at $15 per ton. The unthreshed portion of the crop he sold at $17 per ton."

As timothy, like alfalfa and other fodder crops, is a sure crop in the Edmonton country, and gives good yields, it is gradually coming into favor with the more progressive farmers.

At the Empire

The new bill, which opens at the Empire this afternoon is very much diversified, including singing, acrobatic work, dancing and two exceptionally funny sketches.

The headliners this week are the Four Greatest Olympian Gymnasts. Their work is different from anything yet seen in Edmonton and the perfect manner in which it is executed will make it a most enjoyable treat.

Georgia Gardner and company have a screaming comic skit, "Too Many Darlings." Miss Gardner is a most accomplished actress, and her support is not lacking in any detail. The sketch deals with a most comical case, that of a newly married young man who happens to have a horse with the same name as his wife.

Nichols and Croft have a sketch entitled "An Interrupted Rehearsal." The lady, Miss Croft, comes down to the theatre to have a rehearsal with the orchestra, and is constantly annoyed by the general clumsiness of one of the typical "rough" stage hands which is capably portrayed by Mr. Nichols.

Marjorie and Mueller are a pair of charming singers. They have fine voices and use them to the best of advantage in their popular numbers. Gehan and Spencer are a pair of about the dearest hard shoe dancers one could see anywhere. Their work is catchy, new and neat.

A catchy illustrated song and new pictures will add two more features to the programme.
